Series: Second webinar

The Socio-Economic Rights Project at the Dullah Omar Institute, University of Western Cape, invites you to a webinar with the theme 'Our Voices Matter', to discuss the impact of the lockdown on the socio-economic rights of people in informal settlements in Cape Town.

Discussions on the effectiveness and impact of the measures adopted by the government to curb the spread of COVID-19 have taken place. However, the voices of people in disadvantaged communities most affected by the lockdown are hardly heard.

This webinar seeks to give opportunity to community leaders in informal settlements to share their thoughts and experiences on the impact of the lockdown in their communities.
